Subject: Religious Studies

Catholic Christianity, Judaism, Philosophy and Relationships and Family Life in 21st Century

Career paths:

There is no doubt that religion and spirituality play a huge part in understanding the world and one another. RE GCSE allows for an exploration of beliefs and values along with a unique opportunity to deepen the skills of reflective and critical thinking. Those who study RE speak positively of the contribution it makes to their personal understanding and awareness of others. We take the time to explore the ultimate questions in life that no other subject addresses and to reflect on why religion matters in the lives of human beings.

What can I do after I have completed this course?

Lots of courses work well and complement Religious studies after GCSE. These include Philosophy and Ethics, Criminology, Sociology, Psychology, Sciences, Law, History, English, Art and Politics.

Some of the particular career paths that people find RE useful for are lawyers/barristers, medical/healthcare professionals, teachers, catering and events professionals, the hospitality/entertainment industry, DJs, journalists, Humanitarian and charity work and those who feel called to a religious ministry.
